

Michael H. Fox, Professor
Health Policy and Management
School of Medicine, The University of Kansas

Dr. Fox received an Sc.D., with a major in health policy and management, from the School of Hygiene and Public Health at The Johns Hopkins University. He has graduate degrees in Studies in Behavioral Disabilities and Biostatistics and Clinical Epidemiology from the University of Wisconsin and Medical College of Wisconsin also. He worked in a variety of administrative, research, and teaching positions prior to joining the University of Kansas in 1995.

Dr. Fox's teaching and research interests are in the areas of public health, disability and health policy. He teaches courses on Medicare and Medicaid (HP&M 836), clinical and administrative data analysis (HP&M 874), and outcomes evaluation (HP&M 857) in the MHSA Program and has taught Public Health Administration (HP&M 861) in the Master of Public Health Program the past ten years. He is currently the Research Director of a large multi-year, multi-site study (Rehabilitation Research and Training Center on Full Participation in Independent Living) funded by the National Institute on Disability Rehabilitation and Research and the P.I. on a Christopher Reeve Paralysis Foundation funded study of paralysis surveillance. He is also a co-P.I. on the CDC funded Nobody Left Behind project, investigating disaster management that affect persons with physical disabilities. Dr. Fox's recent publications appear in the Journal of Ambulatory Care Management, the American Journal of Public Health, the Journal of Poverty, the Journal of Disability Studies, Medical Care, the Journal of Health and Social Policy, the Journal of Family and Community Health, Kansas Journal of Law and Public Policy, Kansas Policy Review, and the Journal of Rehabilitation. He is currently (July, 2005) president of the Kansas Health Consumer Coalition (KHCC).