

Kathryn Hund

Director, Workforce Education and Training

Kansas Department of Commerce and Kansas Board of Regents

Kathryn Hund is the Director of Workforce Education and Training with the Kansas Department of Commerce and Kansas Board of Regents. In this liaison position between economic and workforce development, Kathy leads the connection between the Commerce workforce division programs and the postsecondary higher education system. Hund manages special projects and leverages the postsecondary education system to provide solutions to current and future workforce shortages and talent development needs.

Previously, Hund has led various workforce development efforts including custom business training at a technical college; secondary and postsecondary technical education; and various school improvement grants. Hund holds advanced and baccalaureate degrees from Kansas State University. She and her husband own and operate an antiques business in rural Kansas and look forward to visits from their two young adult children.
