EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Alcoholism and other drug abuse have been identified as the number one problem in the African American communities in the United States. The African American communities in Kansas are no exception to this national trend. The large numbers of African American individuals and families who suffer alcohol and other drug addiction, as well as the sociological and economic conditions that invite or support addictive behavior, create a heavy burden on communities already beset by racism, poverty and unequal access to resources. Current efforts on prevention which have been based on the dominant culture models have not been effective in the African American communities. Thus the need for culturally specific prevention models is imperative if we are to create a drug free society in Kansas and in the United States. Consequently, the purpose of this project is to conduct needs assessment and to develop a multi-cultural prevention model that can be replicated in Kansas.

In accomplishing the purpose of the project, a state-side African American leadership task force was organized. The task force worked for a year, collected data, analyzed them and completed the task of developing a multi-cultural prevention model. At the end of the project, the group developed a state-wide organization, Kansas Multi-Cultural Association on Substance Abuse (K-MASA).

INTRODUCTION

Alcohol and other drug abuse, addiction, violence and crime are a tragic plague upon American communities and the nation. This is an epidemic which does not discriminate. It is not bound by income, race or sex; it does not favor urban or rural dwellers; it does not spare school children or the newly born; and it will not cure itself with time.

During the past several years, alcohol and other drug abuse has emerged as an extremely critical problem affecting young people in America today. Authoritative estimates provided by the U.S. government and other sources consistently indicate that during the past decade problems associated with alcohol and drug abuse have continued to escalate until now it is generally acknowledged that these problems represent one of the major threats to our nation. They affect all aspects of life in the U.S. and all strata of society.

An estimated 9 to 12 million Americans are directly affected by the abuse of alcohol and other drugs. One out of every three people participating in a recent survey reported that alcohol or other drugs had caused problems in his or her family. The incidence of rape, incest, spouse abuse, child abuse, and other forms of family violence is higher among alcoholic families. Traffic accidents--the single greatest cause of death for people under the age of thirty-five--were responsible for 49 thousand deaths and 150 thousand cases of permanent disability in the last year for which there is complete data, and 50 percent of those were directly attributable to alcohol or other drugs. For the same period, 50 percent of all the murders in the U.S. involved alcohol and/or other drugs, and 80 percent of those who attempted suicide had been drinking at the time. The suicide rate among alcoholics is approximately 600 percent greater than among the general population and alcoholics have a life expectancy that is approximately 12 years shorter than that of non-alcoholics. The death rate from accidental falls is 500 percent higher for alcoholics than for non-alcoholics, and death in fires is 1,000 percent greater for alcoholics than for the general population as a whole (Herrington, Jacobson, and Benzer 1987).

The economic consequences of substance abuse are enormous. The costs of medical care for alcohol and other drug related illnesses and injuries now exceed $7 billion per year, and another $7 billion is added to the bill for traffic accidents, fires, crimes, and related costs. Absenteeism and lost productivity are calculated to cost the country another $37 billion annually. In fact, the data suggest that the total costs associated with alcohol and other drug abuse represent 25 percent of our current national debt. Official government estimates are that 10 percent of the drinking population consumes 50 percent of the alcoholic beverages sold in the United States and that government agencies collect $17 million per day in taxes on alcohol.

A recent publication on the state of Black America (Dewart 1989) documents the impact of substance abuse in the African-American community. It suggests that drugs in the African-American community are a clear and present danger. Current research findings suggest that substance abuse is linked to three general processes: economic deprivation, racism, and stress. Although African Americans represent only 11 percent of the national population, they purchase 30 percent of the Scotch whiskey sold in this country. There are ten times more liquor stores in the African-American communities than in predominately white communities. It is estimated that African Americans spend $11-12 billion annually on alcohol. A recent study by the Fanon Research and Development Center, a part of the Charles R. Drew University of Medicine and Science in Los Angeles, indicates that approximately 16 percent of African Americans are alcoholics.

In regard to drug use and abuse, the data indicate that 32 percent of African Americans have used drugs illicitly at some time in their lives. There can be little doubt that drug abuse has reached epidemic proportion within the African-American community. For example, in Oakland, California, it is estimated that 90 percent of the drug trafficking is in cocaine. This expensive and addictive drug is available to the poorer people and children in the Black community. In consequence, Black children are exposed at an early age to the presence of drugs, thus becoming quickly acclimated to a drug-infested environment. The emergence of young Black gangs and Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome (AIDS) are the newest and most frightening dangers from the presence of drugs, especially crack, in the African-American community.

In light of this hard data relative to the impact of alcohol and other drug abuse on the African-American community, it is important to note that community members seldom view alcoholism and other drug abuse as an illness, and they have also been slow to confront the issue as a social problem requiring professional help. The black church, in general, views the abuse of alcohol and drugs as a sin rather than an illness. Consequently, the involvement of African Americans in the prevention, intervention, and treatment processes has been limited. Another important factor in dealing with alcohol and other drug abuse in the African-American community is the apparent lack of effective strategies and prevention models.

Epidemiologic data from the National Institute on Drug Abuse (NIDA) funded research indicate the following:

-Nearly 7.6 million Blacks and 3.7 million Hispanics have used an illicit drug at least once in their lifetimes (Source: Household Survey).

-Hispanic teenagers aged 12-17 years are more likely than white or Black youth to have used cocaine at least once during their lifetimes, during the past year, or during the past month. Blacks aged 35+ are more likely than whites or Hispanics of the same age to have used cocaine at least once during their lifetimes, during the past year, or during the past month. (Source: Household Survey).

-Drug abuse is an important factor associated with the high rate of school dropouts among Blacks, Hispanics and American Indians (Source: Current Research).

-Hispanics accounted for 22% of emergency room episodes due to inhalants - a significant over-representation of that ethnic group compared with their numbers in the total population (Source: DAWN).

-Between 1984 and 1987, cocaine related deaths among Blacks and other minorities tripled compared with a doubling among whites (Source: DAWN).

-Among 12-17 year-olds, Blacks and Hispanics are more likely than whites to see no risk associated with the occasional use of marijuana. Among the 18-25 year-olds, Blacks are more likely than Hispanics and whites to see no risk associated with occasional use of marijuana (Source: Household Survey).

-A higher rate of perceived risk-free cocaine experimentation was found among Black and Hispanic males than white males in the 12 to 17 age category. Perceptions of harmfulness of marijuana and cocaine are related to past year drug use for each of these drug (Source: Household Survey).

-White minority youth perceive less risk associated with drug abuse than white youth, they are more likely to be responsive to drug education programs. Drug education courses or lectures in school appear to have a greater preventive impact on Black than white students (Source: National High School Senior Survey).

-Vulnerability and risk factors associated with the onset of drug use and the progression from use to abuse and dependency are complex and include interpersonal, intrapersonal and environmental factors (Source: Current Research).

During the last 15 years, research to determine the precursors and antecedents of drug abuse has progressed largely as a result of longitudinal studies of various cohorts of pre-adolescents and adolescents. Multiple pathways lead to drug use and to drug abuse and dependence. These pathways may be interpersonal, intrapersonal or environmental.

Of particular importance is the early identification of high-risk children. Research suggests that initial markers of later problem behaviors can be identified as early as elementary school. The early emergence of conduct disorders and achievement problems in school have been shown to be predictive of later antisocial and delinquent behavior in adolescence. Other social and behavioral markers of later drug abuse include: poor and inconsistent parental practices, physical and/or sexual abuse, low degree of social bonding, positive beliefs and attitudes toward drug use, high levels of sensation seeking, rebelliousness, shy and aggressive behavior, association with deviant prone peers, age of first use, and an affinity for nonconventional behaviors. A combination of these factors appears to place an individual at high risk to subsequent drug abuse. More recently, research has focused upon biologic and genetic factors that predispose individuals to the abuse of alcohol and other drugs.

In order to effectively combat alcoholism, other drug abuse and related problems, the current research suggests that culturally specific programs are imperative. Thus attempts have been made in this project to identify cultural factors in Kansas prevention strategies toward a drug free society in Kansas.

PROBLEM

The problem of drug use, particularly hard drugs, in ethnic communities was the subject of Belinda Tucker's investigation in 1985, "U.S. Ethnic Minorities and Drug Abuse: An Assessment of the Science and Practice." The author reviews the literature regarding ethnic-specific problems and institutional and scientific responses. The types of concerns that the author finds exemplified in the literature regarding ethnic-specific problems are: 1) the lack of research relevant to the treatment and prevention needs of ethnic minority communities, 2) lack of drug abuse theories which take ethnicity into account, and 3) the need for alternative treatment and prevention models which are sensitive to the specific needs of minority populations. The scientific literature has primarily been concerned with: 1) epidemiological surveys, 2) etiological studies, 3) characteristics of users, and 4) service delivery. The author concludes with a discussion of implications for practice or service delivery.

The current study is an attempt to respond to the need for developing culturally-specific prevention programs.

PURPOSE

The purpose of this project was two-fold. First, the purpose was to conduct a needs assessment on substance abuse and resources available in the Black communities in Kansas. Second, effective Multi-cultural prevention, intervention and treatment services was to be examined by Black leaders from throughout Kansas with the purpose of designing a Kansas Multi-Cultural substance abuse prevention model.

METHODOLOGY

The work of the task force committees culminated into the development of a multi-cultural model. The model values cultural diversity. It includes other variables, such as religion, gender, age and sexual preference. The model has two parts: Phase A - Structured Prevention, and Phase B - Unstructured Multi-Cultural Resource Center. The model has been diagrammed as follows:

Multi-Cultural Prevention Model A and B Phases

1. Independent Exploration
2. Enhancement of Group and Family Counseling Services
3. Staff Training
4. Dissemination to Local National Programs

KANSAS MULTI-CULTURAL ASSOCIATION ON SUBSTANCE ABUSE (K-MASA)

During the last quarterly meeting of the task force on June 19, 1990 in Topeka, a new state-wide organization, K-MASA was established to continue the goals of the task force. The following are the purposes, goals and objectives of the organization:

K-MASA is the first multi-cultural state-wide organization in Kansas and this regional. It is designed to address the wide range issues of prevention and clinical needs of our culturally diverse population. Its membership includes persons from all walks of life; community leaders, policymakers, alcohol and drug abuse prevention and treatment professionals, educators, lawyers, physicians, social workers etc.

The mission and goals are:

To promote the development and implementation of comprehensive, multi-cultural substance abuse prevention, intervention and treatment programs.

To provide continuing education in multi-cultural aspects of alcoholism and drug addiction.

To translate current research in the field into public education programs and public health policy.

To develop a new constituency of concerned professionals and individuals working in alcohol and other drug abuse.

To encourage research and coordinate research into the problems of alcoholism, drug addiction and other related issues.

This organization was one of the sponsoring groups of the first Kansas Multi-Cultural conference on alcoholism and drug addiction on November 1 and 2, 1990 in Wichita, Kansas. It is clear that the project has more than accomplished its purpose.

RECOMMENDATIONS

1. It is recommended that the multi-cultural prevention model developed in this project should be tested and evaluated
2. Based on the data collected during the experimental period, the model should be replicated on a regional basis.
3. The findings of the project should be disseminated to other national prevention projects.
4. To accomplish the above goals, the Office of the Governor and/or ADAS should provide the necessary resources.

Minutes of the Task Force Meeting, June 29, 1990

Notes

Task Force Meeting
June 29, 1990
Topeka, Kansas

Present were the following members:

Bernie Norwood, Al Dorsey, David Jacobs, Carl Shackelford, Thirkelle Howard, Edith Knox, Bernice Hutcherson, Verron Pierce, Wilson Thurston, Jacob Gordon, and V. C. League.

Agenda:

1. Welcome and Refreshments
2. Introduction and Remarks (V. C. League)
3. Committee Reports
4. Executive Committee Report (Jake Gordon)
5. Recommendations
6. Discussion and Action
7. Adjournment

V. C. League, who has been part of this group from its inception, spoke briefly on the current national status and trends in prevention. He emphasized the need for prevention network, the relationship between education and law enforcement, the African American children of addiction and the need for a national conference of African Americans on Alcohol and Drug Abuse. He urged the group to continue its focus on state issues, particularly as they relate to African Americans and other racial groups.

Al Dorsey provided a detailed analysis of the African American Needs Assessment which was conducted by his committee. It was clear from the report that African Americans and other racial minority groups were not part of the mainstream of state prevention, intervention and treatment programs. Equally important was their apparent absence from staff and client categories of state alcohol and other drug abuse programs. Rev. Norwood reported on the implications of local revenues accruing from alcohol tax. The executive committee report included a presentation on a proposed and funded state-wide conference on the multi-cultural dimensions of alcoholism and drug addiction, the future of the Task Force and culturally specific prevention and treatment models.

Actions:

1. Bernice Hutcherson moved for approval of the models. Jake Gordon seconded the motion. Motion was unanimously carried.
2. Jake Gordon moved for a state-wide association instead of the Task Force. Edith Knox seconded the motion and it was unanimously carried. There was a consensus in naming the group as follows: "Kansas Multi-Cultural Association on Substance Abuse, Inc. (K-MASA)."
3. Bernice Hutcherson moved to complete and approve the proposed by-laws for the organization. Al Dorsey seconded the motion and it was carried. Accordingly, the

- by-laws were completed and approved.
4. Wilson Thurston moved that the organization be incorporated with all present as incorporators. Vernon Pierce seconded the motion and it was approved.
  5. With regard to the proposed conference, Vernon Pierce moved Project Freedom as co-sponsor. Bernice Hutcherson seconded the motion and it was passed.
  6. The group proceeded to elect officers for the organization:
    1. Chairperson - Bernice Hutcherson
    2. Vice Chair - Wilson Thurston
    3. Secretary - Edith Knox
    4. Treasurer - Al Dorsey

According to the by-laws approved, Jacob Gordon will serve as the Executive Director of K-MASA until such time that the organization can afford a full-time paid Executive Director.

7. The group adjourned at 1:00pm with a sense of accomplishment and the desire to embark of the task of making K-MASA an effective organization in the state.
